The Joy of Christmas

by Richard DeRosa

The Christmas season is here at last,
At a time to recall wonderful memories of holiday's past.
Stores all decorated and aglitter with Christmas lights
Which illuminate December nights.

Children are read stories of Santa and the Magi
Tales that evoke laughter and even make them cry.
Excitement and anticipation hangs breathlessly in the air
Kids hoping Santa will bring them toys their prayer.

For many in the world, Christmas began in a manger.
Where a very special child was born among strangers.
Only the sun, moon and stars to amuse him.
Born in a damp cave where light was dim.

The season affords us the opportunity to mend fences.
When love for one another fills everyone's senses.
Though the weather this time of year causes shivers.
Warmth and good cheer should flow like a gushing river.

His message was simple "Love your neighbor as yourself."
One who truly believes this and follows it has true wealth.
It's difficult to forgive someone who has hurt you,
To forgive and forget is very hard that is true.

He entreats those who are confused and wandering still
That the way to inner peace is through love and goodwill.
Your soul will become radiant when it's from the heart.
A new spirit will be born with this new start.

Hopefully these simple thoughts will permeate your heart and soul.
A Way of life for young and old.
Make this Christmas one of loving and caring.
If you do, the one above, his love for you he will be sharing.

So as you settle snug in your bed awaiting Santa's call,
Gazing out the window, admiring the snowflakes as they fall.
If you look closely in the sky you'll see a star so bright,
There is where mankind will find their guiding light.

May God dispense joy and peace throughout our land,
May peace reign supreme everywhere and in the holy land,
May your troubles be few and far between this coming year,
May you enjoy inner peace and enjoy the new year with good cheer.

WCTV, police produce warning

by Jeff Nazzaro

The holiday season has come to be known by excess: excessive partying, eating, shopping, traffic and yes, drinking and driving. But a few beers or some of grandma's special recipe eggnog and a trip behind the wheel could result in excessive expenditure - to the tune of 2,000 bucks.

Because of the concern of drunk-driving throughout the holiday season, Sandra Curtin and Cheryl Soderquist have produced an edition of the WCTV show "In Pursuit of Excellence" that employs the aid of Wilmington Police and discusses the monetary costs of drunk-driving.

Contained in the 15-minute program will be an enactment of a drunk-driving arrest, taped on Lowell Street. Officer Joe Harris acts as arresting officer, pulling over the swerving motorist, administering a sobriety test, arresting the suspect and bringing him to the police station where he is given a breathalyzer test and booked by Officer Michael Begonis.

Further, Tighe stated Monday that problems experienced in the "first 68" units have been corrected since his former partner left the operation.

Still, less than a week later, a leaflet stuck on a car window scared a potential Shawsheen Commons resident and sale commission away from Bianco for the third time in the last month.

The leaflets are not, as one might suspect, coming from a Shawsheen Commons resident, but rather from an abutter, identified as living at the end of Reed Street by John Perkins, another real estate salesperson feeling the sting of the neighbor's campaign against Shawsheen Commons.

"He's ruining my life," Bianco said of the person responsible for the leaflets. "He's affecting my livelihood...I have a family to feed."

Neighbors campaign against Shawsheen Commons

by Jeff Nazzaro

Independent real estate agent Nick Bianco thought he had a sale all lined up Saturday. The client seemed interested and appeared ready to make an offer on an affordable housing unit in Shawsheen Commons. On returning to his car, however, the prospective home buyer found a leaflet detailing problems with Shawsheen Commons housing units. The client shied away.

Some residents of Shawsheen Commons have in fact experienced many problems with their units in the affordable housing development. Those complaints were heard by local developer Jay Tighe and the Wilmington Board of Selectmen last Monday and an agreement was reached whereby Tighe would continue repairs on faulty units under the light supervision of the board of selectmen.

Perkins believes the neighbor is upset over Reed Street being broken through with an island placed in the middle of it.

"The bottom line to me as far as I'm concerned," Perkins said, "the only people [the Reed Street neighbor] is hurting right now are the real-estate agents. His battles with the [Shawsheen Commons] developers and owners are over. It's a done deal."

Perkins said that during the July 4th weekend, during an appointment for an open house on Shawsheen Avenue, the neighbor told a prospective home buyer words to the effect of "If you're buying in [Shawsheen Commons] you're gonna be sorry."

Perkins, who has been selling in the area "before there was ever a house there," does not understand why the Reed Street resident is hindering salespeople.

"We've never done anything to these [Reed Street residents]. He's fooling around with somebody's livelihood. The only thing he's doing or his family is doing is hurting [salespeople] and there's just no need for it," Perkins stated.

School committee votes to reopen Boutwell School

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Wilmington School Committee voted 5-1 last Wednesday in favor of the Space Needs

Subcommittee recommendation for reopening the Boutwell School to meet growing classroom space needs. Committeewoman Dr. Shirley Callan dissented.

The school committee must now find a way to finance the estimated $531,000 project, which would serve children from kindergarten through grade 5. Funding for the Boutwell's reopening could come down to a Proposition 2 1/2 override, which would be decided by the townspeople.

According to Chairman Robert Peterson, the school committee's job now "is to find the money or ask the selectmen to put a Prop. 2 1/2 override on the ballot."

One of the financing alternatives currently being entertained is a restructuring of teacher salaries.

"That in and of itself would pay for [reopening the Boutwell]," Peterson said.

But hopes of avoiding a Prop. 2 1/2 ballot showdown do not sound high for Peterson.

"In my opinion that's the only way it can get done," he stated.

While no timetable has been set for finding alternate funding,

Peterson indicated there was "not a lot of time." Reopening the Boutwell School would entail restructuring bus routes and would affect all the other school districts in the town, according to Peterson.

"It is something we would have to get a head start on in the next month or two," he said.

An alternate plan for providing additional needed classroom space would have seen the eighth grades moved to the high school and the sixth grades moved to the various intermediate schools. Most parents seemed to favor the reopening of the Boutwell School.

Winter parking ban in effect

The Wilmington Police Department has implemented a winter parking ban for all motor vehicles on any public street between the hours of 1:00 a.m. and 6:00 a.m.

The ban is in effect now through April 1 with violators subject to a $50 fine. In addition, any vehicle deemed to be interfering with snow removal is subject to being towed at the owner's expense by the police or the DPW. The ban is written into the town by-laws.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS
Certified Public Accountant

MAKING THE RIGHT CHOICES OF AN INHERITED IRA

It's not unusual when working couples name each other as primary beneficiaries of their Individual Retirement Accounts. But it is rare that they plan in advance how to make the most of that money.

There are two choices: the inheriting spouse can take the account as a beneficiary or can roll over the fund into a new account in his or her own name. There's a big difference in the outcome.

If the spouse takes the money as a beneficiary, he or she must continue to take distributions as the IRA owner did even if the owner was more than 70 1/2. When the surviving spouse dies, the money remaining in the account is distributed and subject to income tax.

Rollled over into the survivor's account, the money can be distributed according to the combined life expectancy of the spouse and a new (possibly much younger) beneficiary. A grandchild is a likely choice. Result: the money remains, tax-deferred and growing, for many more years.

Happy Holidays to All!

Town Pulse & Opinion

Editorial

by Rick Cooke, editor

This concerned citizen is a reporter

It is about time that someone stood up and asked the proper questions about the way the ongoing problems at Wilmington's Shawsheen Commons have been reported in the local weekly media, namely the Advertiser.

I know that the residents of Shawsheen Commons have legitimate complaints that need to be dealt with by developer Jay Tighe. These problems have gone on long enough, and Tighe, often caught between a rock and a hard place thanks to terrible construction, is attempting to finally satisfy residents with much-needed repairs. While Tighe is responsible for answering and correcting these problems of construction, other people should begin answering some pertinent questions almost immediately - if not sooner.

The Advertiser had two reporters present at the recent meeting with Shawsheen Commons residents and the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. One has never reported on this story in his life, while the other, Arlene Suprenant, had covered the story extensively for the Town Crier for many years before leaving several months ago over a disagreement concerning this very story. That Monday night, copies of Mrs. Suprenant's story were passed out among residents while she sat and asked questions, never identifying herself as a reporter. She was right in not doing so, because first and foremost, everyone should remember that Mrs. Suprenant is an abutter first in this situation and a reporter second. She was against the Shawsheen Commons development from day one and bashed it to death in the Town Crier for eight years before suddenly taking up the cause for the Commons' residents.

Its fine to bash Jay Tighe and this project, but let's be honest with each other here. An abutter who wrote news stories slanted against the project from the beginning should not be writing stories bashing it, even if problems exist. It is called journalistic fair play, and that is why Arlene Suprenant was pulled off this story at the Town Crier. And that could be why there is no byline under the latest Advertiser piece on the Shawsheen Commons issue that ran in the December 16 Advertiser. Maybe someone is starting to catch on over there.

But now, Mrs. Suprenant sits at a board of selectmen's meeting and never identifies herself as a reporter. She would have been more accurate had she stood up and identified herself as an abutter. "Could this be a case of 'not in my backyard' syndrome by someone who has access to a position in the media?"

It is a fair question to ask, given the fact that Jay Tighe answered every question asked of him that Monday night. Now, he just has to deliver on the answers that he supplied to both the residents and the board of selectmen.

But, at least everyone knows Tighe's title and his responsibility in this matter. A new resident of Wilmington commented that Surprenant's questions were valid, but every question she asked needs to be qualified concerning this situation. Before a nail was even driven at Shawsheen Commons, the bashing had begun here at the Town Crier in what were supposedly "objective" news stories. When I tried to change that policy and enact some balance to these stories, all hell broke loose and Mrs. Suprenant resigned. Well, three weeks ago the Advertiser ignored those issues that had bothered me and assigned Surprenant to a rehash of the stories that she had written here at the Town Crier.

It was never mentioned in that first Advertiser story that Mrs. Suprenant is an abutter who was dead set against the Shawsheen Commons project from day one. Selectman Mike McCoy had the courage to remind everyone that Monday night that he voted against the Shawsheen Commons plan when it was first proposed. It might be a classic case of 'I told you so' on McCoy's part, but in this instance the can is right on target.

If Jay Tighe has the responsibility to answer some tough questions, then Arlene Suprenant and the other abutters should answer some tough questions too. Are they all legitimately concerned with the residents of Shawsheen Commons and their respective problems, or are they just dead set against affordable housing? Get out from behind that concerned neighbor routine and say what you really mean.

It would be nice if Jay Tighe eventually solved all of the problems that residents say exist at Shawsheen Commons. It would also be nice if both Shawsheen Commons residents and abutters to the project would stop harassing real estate brokers who are trying to do their jobs and feed their families. I know people are upset, but these types of actions solve absolutely nothing.

I have been inside and spoken with several homeowners at Shawsheen Commons. They have legitimate complaints that should be rectified. There are other homeowners at Shawsheen Commons, perhaps more experienced buyers, who love the place. I also found it strange that the first homeowner I approached several months ago announced that "I know you are a friend of Jay Tighe." Funny, but Tighe and I are not buddies, and before anyone points a finger at this issue, yes I advised Tighe on how to deal with next Labor Day Weekend's National Softball Tourney that he is attempting to bring to Wilmington and Tewksbury. I am an unpaid advisor in this matter. Tighe and I have known each other for 20 years, and before this Shawsheen Commons issue came up, we talked sports - sometimes hockey, but mostly softball. So, we are not buddies, and I'm not on the Tighe payroll.

Having answered that question, I'll ask one more before I embark on some last minute Christmas shopping. Can you be a reporter, abutter and concerned citizen all simultaneously?

My answer is a resounding "No."

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

With the holiday season underway, family, college students and old friends will make the journey home to rekindle friendships at the dinner table, during a football game or at a holiday party.

As the distributor of Anheuser-Busch beers in Wilmington, D.J. Reardon Co., Inc. wants to encourage everyone to enjoy the holiday safely and that means being responsible. So if you're going to a holiday party, make sure it's agreed up front who the designated driver will be. If you're hosting a holiday party, be sure to have non-alcoholic drinks available for designated drivers, offer food and snacks to your guests (which slow down the effects of alcohol on the body), and close the bar one hour before the party is over. And, if despite your best efforts, a guest has too much to drink, call a cab or have someone else drive him or her home.

With a little planning, drunk driving can be prevented. Fortunately, more and more Americans are doing just that: In the past decade, drunk driving fatalities among adults are down 32 percent, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation, and among teens, they have dropped a remarkable 60 percent.

The best gift we can give ourselves and our loved ones is a healthy, prosperous 1994. As you toast your friends and family this holiday season, remember - "Know When to say When."

Sincerely,
Anne B. McGregor

Dear Larz:

I want to thank the many volunteers who have helped me circulate my nomination papers so that my name may appear on the ballot for the March 1 special election for State Representative. I also want to thank the hundreds and hundreds of people who gave them such a warm reception in our community at a time of year when elections are usually far from our minds. Although the final count is not in, we are many times over the required number of signatures, with every town in the district well represented.

I plan to campaign hard in the New Year to earn your support on the issues of jobs, quality education, crime, and bringing more honesty to state government on Beacon Hill, and I look forward to talking with you about these and other concerns over the next two months.

Sincerely yours,
Sandra J. Trainor

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I visited the Woburn Street School two days each week for three weeks in October. During this period, I spent a bit less than an hour in each classroom (K through five). I generally began by talking about my own books and went on to create a model character, story or riddle with participation from the class. Whatever we did became an example of what students could draw and write themselves.

Thanks to teachers' preparation, I found an atmosphere of welcome in each classroom. Students were attentive, responsive, creative and productive during our class time. That was rewarding by itself. But there was more.

The follow-up by teachers in every grade impressed me. Depending on the activity I'd introduced, teachers gave students additional time and encouragement to develop their ideas into full stories, books or presentations to be shared. I saw some great displays in the hallways and found fascinating writing in my school mailbox.

Kate Conway and many specialists gave critical support throughout my stay. I was a new and extra person who must have complicated everybody's busy schedule in the library or at the copy machine. Yet I was treated as an educational resource person and valued guest.

So, I give thanks to Robyn Casey and all the parents who helped generate funding for my visits. I hope your children enjoyed being with me as much as I enjoyed being with them.

Deborah Gould

Dear Larz:

As a Massachusetts citizen, I am concerned about our national solid waste problem.

As it stands now, our landfills are filling up. Incinerators continue to spew hazardous emissions into our environment. Meanwhile, reusable and recyclable materials are being needlessly discarded, resulting in wasted money used for disposal purposes. This is why we need a National Bottle Bill to reduce litter and complement existing curbside recycling programs.

Currently in place in nine states, including Massachusetts, Bottle Bills have helped reduce air pollution and water contamination while increasing recycling jobs and decreasing tax dollars spent on trash disposal. Bottle Bills also have a proven track record of reducing both beverage container and overall litter dramatically, and at the same time complementing existing curbside recycling programs. With these results we, as voices of our representatives, must see that a National Bottle Bill passes.

Initially introduced on Earth Day 1993 by Massachusetts Representative Edward Markey, the National Bottle Bill would place a 10 cent refundable deposit on beverage containers such as soft drinks, mineral water, wine coolers and beer. By urging Representative Martin T. Meehan to support H.R. 1818, we will support the most effective, efficient and cost effective recycling programs ever enacted.

Sincerely,
Matthew Kubis

Dear Larz:

Can someone tell me what to do about those plastic bags with ads in them that are hung on the mail box?

I have called the two companies that deliver them. One, the Sun Publishing was very nice and promised to stop delivery; the other one, Enterprise, they were something else! I was told "the drivers take orders from me only and you can not stop them unless I tell them!"

I also have gone to the town manager and the postmaster.

I am 84 years old, get two papers a day plus one on Thursday, which is all I can handle in trash. I cannot carry two weeks papers to the rubbish plus all the ads.

Do I have to go to a lawyer to stop them? I have painted the mail box pole "no ads;" taken them off the hook which they put on, then they put a screw into the pole. I took that off, then they put the bag on with a thumbtack which I took off and the last hanger was a picture hanger hook. I saved them all. I sat in my car for an hour and waited for them one Saturday and gave them back the ads, but nothing does any good. Evidently they can't read - probably never went to school. They are not young folks.

I have paid taxes for almost 60 years in Wilmington and never asked for anything, but now I ask: What do I do? Go to court? Take down my mail box? Sit in my car every week?

I paid for my mail box - to receive my stamped mail, Not ads, with no name, or a ton of trash.

You can tell when you cross over the line in Wilmington by the trash hanging on the boxes. Incidentally, does Church Street have them?

Chocolate Affair coming to North Reading

The Rotary Club of No. Reading will sponsor a "Chocolate Affair" Sunday, Jan. 23 at the Hillview Country Club from 2 to 5 p.m. for only $10. This fundraiser will offer ticket holders a chance to taste the area's finest chocolate creations from many local participating vendors. It's also a great idea as a holiday gift for those hard to purchase for people on any list.

Presently over 15 chocolate specialists have signed up to offer their heavenly chocolate creations for sampling. These include the ever popular Godiva chocolatier, whose time honored Belgian recipes tempt any eye and delight any palate. Also included are North Reading's own Caffè Amore, Kitty's, Our House Restaurant, the Hillview Country Club and Laurie's Place for Pasta.

Besides the sampling of the chocolate creations, various door prizes will also be raffled. Wildflowers of North Reading will be on hand to take orders for Valentine's Day and Advanced Photo, also of North Reading, will be offering "Sweetheart" photos to give loved ones.

The public will also be given an opportunity to vote for the "People's Choice Award" which will be presented to the best chocolatier of the event. "Our Chocolate Affair is still accepting participants," Linda Leith, vice president of the North Reading Rotary Club said. "All that is needed is a call to me at 508-664-5529 to sign up. It's a great way to have customers sample your goodies just in time for Valentine's Day, when we all want chocolates."

The Rotary Club's "Chocolate Affair" will benefit the annual all-nite senior party. Tickets are $10 in advance by calling 508-664-9064 or $15 at the door. Mastercard and Visa are accepted over the phone. Early ticket purchase is recommended with only 1,000 tickets being sold to this event.

The Rotary Club is also accepting companies who would like to be an official "Friend of Rotary" sponsor. Gold, silver and bronze sponsorships are available by calling Dave O'Neil at 664-1094 or Linda Leith at 664-5529.

Free support group for parents of premature infants

It's not easy being a premature infant - or the parent of one. Each year, 10 percent of all babies in the United States are born prematurely (before the 37th week of pregnancy). Because these babies are before nature intended, they can encounter medical difficulties. Many premature infants need special care - and with all of the work and worrying involved in caring for a premature infant - their parents need special attention, too.

For parents of premature infants, and other "graduates" from Winchester Hospital's Special Care Nursery seeking support and guidance, Winchester Hospital offers "Helping Parents," a new parent to parent support group at Winchester Hospital. "Helping Parents" provides support, information and resources for parents with premature infants.

"Helping Parents" meets every other Thursday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at Winchester Hospital. To find out how to participate, call 617-756-2634.

High school choir serenades Rotary

There were, this year, fewer high school students than usually visit Wilmington Rotary, for a musical program, just before Christmas. The visit was on December 15. As usual the program and choral songsters were in charge of Lorraine Kalil.

Six sopranos, four altos and two baritones were the singers for this year. Janee Woods, a young lady from Oakdale Road was the soloist soprano. Her voice was soft and melodious. James Gleason of Kendall Street was the soloist baritone, a voice which was enjoyed by the audience.

To list the sopranos: Miss Woods, Grace Maria DaSilva, Michelle Mazzola, Candice Hassam and Angela Cairra.

The altos were Andrea Edwards, Dawn Richmond and Jennifer Mullins. In addition to soloist Gleason, James Doucette was singing baritone.

There was a quartet of flute soloists, Missy Kanter, Wendy Meegan, Michelle Montalto and Heather Smith, and two accompanists on the piano, besides Miss Kalil, Jenna Volpe and George Bellefontaine.

TRAVEL TERMS TO KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Once you've figured out where you want to go on vacation and all those lovely travel brochures are spread out in front of you, how can you be sure that what you see is what you'll get? For starters, make sure you understand the terms. Like any other area of expertise, the travel industry has its own set of terminology with very specific meanings. Take that "air conditioned" bus, for instance; it may just have open windows. When activities are listed as "available," it usually means they are options that cost extra if you choose to participate. If your itinerary promises a "visit" to an attraction, you can expect enough time to stop off and explore it. If, however, plans are for a "view," be prepared for a photo-opportunity stop.

It never hurts to take a few extra precautions to safeguard against vacation misunderstandings. One step to take to ensure your travels go smoothly is to make All Around Travel your headquarters for travel planning. Ours is a total commitment to proper preparation for all your travel needs - documents, passports, visa, etc. We can quickly check all rates through our computer, so you always get the most favorable savings - even though you never pay a fee for our services. Stop by 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rt. 62), Mon-Fri 9-5 by appointment, Phone 658-2313.

HINT: Being told you will "see" a particular attraction may mean watching it pass by the windows of a moving tour bus.

Thinking money

The right asset allocation

by Donald E. Sommese

A well thought out investment plan is based on an "asset allocation" model - in other words, the percentages of an investor's money devoted to stocks, bonds, or cash. The asset allocation you choose may be more important than the actual stocks or bonds you select for your portfolio, according to some financial analysts.

How do you determine the right asset allocation for you? One of the factors to be considered in selecting the right asset mix is the common needs and concerns of your age group. Your optimal mix can then be adjusted for your special needs and circumstances.

"Thirtysomethings"
Needs and Concerns

*Bills for young children are growing rapidly

*A new or expanded home may be needed for a growing family.

A new, larger automobile may be required

*Day care for young children may have to be funded.

*Saving for children's college tuitions should begin.

*Early planning for retirement should be considered if possible.

Typically, those in the "thirtysomething" age group will see only one thing grow faster than their children - and that's their bills. The unique needs of thirtysomethings, who have longer term perspectives and generally more aggressive risk profiles, warrant more exposure to equities than the average investor.

Suggested asset allocation for "thirtysomethings"

Seventy percent stocks; 25 percent bonds; five percent cash.

Thirtysomethings would do well to put most of their cash holdings into a laddered portfolio of Treasury bills, which provide safety and regulate state tax exempt income to help meet week-to-week obligations. They can use intermediate term bonds to save for big ticket items that will be needed if and when their family grows. However, to meet future obligations, a good degree of growth is required. Thus, the equity portion of their portfolio should be comprised of very high quality growth stocks.

"Fortysomethings"
needs and concerns

*Children are approaching college age

*Savings have been insufficient, in most cases.

Current income will be needed to meet ongoing cash flow requirements.

*Tax saving advantages become more important.

*Planning for retirement should have begun.

*Portfolio requires growth as well as income.

Typically, for "fortysomething" investors, it is likely that savings have lagged requirements, especially for children's college tuition. Those investors who do have sufficient savings to cover most college tuition expenses should bolster the equity component of the portfolio to perhaps 70 percent and reduce bonds to 25 percent.

Suggested Asset Allocation for "Fortysomethings"

Sixty percent stocks; 35 percent bonds; five percent cash.

Just like their counterparts who are in their fifties, "fortysomethings" should stick with high quality stocks in the equity component of their portfolios. Since a good portion of their group's funds should be allocated to bonds, the stocks need not necessarily have above average dividend yields. The bond portion of investments should be skewed toward quality municipal issued by the state where the investor lives, which will generally ensure maximum tax saving advantages.

Home Depot has opened the doors in Tewksbury near Rt 495, although the "grand opening" isn't scheduled until next year, they are selling, and selling and selling.

Piñata's is open, again. Their first opening a couple of weeks ago found the staff overwhelmed. Management chose to close the doors for a few days to reorganize. Now they're really ready for business in the old Tewksbury Inn.

Maggie McKeevers Irish Pub will open Thursday, Jan 13 on Main St. Tewksbury in the building vacated by Bob White last year. Maggie's is managed by the Irish side of the DePasquale family, of Rocco's fame in Wilmington. The pub is named Mrs. DePasquale's mother Maggie McKeever.

"Fiftysomethings"
needs and concerns

*Retirement is approaching.

*College education costs for children may still loom.

*Safety of principal has become a greater concern.

Typically, a "fiftysomething" investor is concerned with safety of principal, as he or she approaches retirement. By now, "fiftysomethings" are beginning to give serious thoughts to retirement and are aware that retirees often have 20 or more active years ahead of them after they quit working. In addition, individuals may have special needs or circumstances which should also be considered.

Suggested Asset Allocation for "Fiftysomethings"

Fifty percent stocks; 45 percent bonds; five percent cash.

The above asset mix seeks to achieve safety in two ways. The equity portion of this group's portfolio should be well diversified and contain stocks with moderate yields, which tend to mitigate portfolio volatility. In addition, the bond portion should now be skewed toward Treasuries. A strong weighting in equities is recommended to generate sufficient growth for retirement years - which, as mentioned above, could number 20 or more.

"Sixtysomethings"
beyond needs and concerns

*Steady income to meet day-to-day requirements.

*Preservation of capital.

*Maintenance of purchasing power.

*Adequate liquidity for emergencies.

*Extra cash for travel and leisure.

Although many people continue to work throughout their sixties, for a typical "sixtysomething" investor, retirement is the key financial concern. Whether individuals in this age category are already retired or have not yet left the work force, they can look forward to an average of 20 more years of financial needs that still must be met.

Suggested Asset Allocation for "Sixtysomethings"

Thirty to 40 percent stocks; 45 to 55 percent bonds; five to 15 percent cash.

Investors in their sixties and beyond are generally risk averse and in need of current income. These requirements should be met by the bond component of the portfolio, specifically U.S. Treasury notes. Importantly, "tiering" the maturities among one year, three year, five year, and seven year notes can allow for potential reinvestment at higher rates down the road. Also of significance for "sixtysomethings" is preserving purchasing power, and near retirees can't stay ahead of inflation without equities. The type of stocks recommended for "sixtysomethings" are conservative and offer the potential for capital appreciation as well as dividend income.

No matter what your age, your optimum asset mix will change over time, depending on your goals and lifestyle needs. The asset allocation

ELECTRICAL CORD SENSE

QUESTION: Last winter, a middle-of-the-night fire struck down an elderly couple before they could make it to the front door. I understand the cause of the fire was a frayed extension cord under the living room rug. What can be done to prevent extension cord fires?

MANY ELECTRICAL fires are caused by frayed extension cords. Be careful with extension cords.

ANSWER: If the insulation on the cord wears away, leaving two wires exposed, they may touch, short circuit, shoot sparks and start a fire. You must never damage the insulation. Never fasten cords down with nails or staples, run cords under rugs, or over radiators, pipes, or rough edges. You shouldn't splice cords or ever let them become badly frayed.

Soccer sign-up

Registration for the spring in-town season of Wilmington Youth Soccer will be held in Villanova Hall at St. Thomas Church from 6 to 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 11 and Wednesday, Jan. 12. Boys and girls in grades K through five are invited to sign up. First time players should take a copy of their birth certificate (this will not be returned). It is imperative that any fall in-town coaches who have not done so, turn in their equipment at this registration.

Soccer in England

High School age girls interested in playing soccer in England in August should contact Kathy O'Connell at 605-432-8105 for information about the organizational meeting planned for Sunday, Jan. 9.

O'Connell, who coaches at Pinkerton Academy and who has three times been named New Hampshire Coach of the Year, will be the head coach of the touring team.

This year's summer tour will highlight London plus many of England's other famous cities and sites. Along with playing English youth clubs, O'Connell's team is scheduled to compete against the youth developmental squads of some of England's professional teams. O'Connell has previously taken teams to Holland, Germany and Belgium.

"Playing soccer overseas is a great educational as well as athletic experience," explains O'Connell, who is also a history teacher at Pinkerton Academy. "This is the type of challenge which the serious soccer player relishes and which helps individual players mature their potential to play at the collegiate level. The opportunity to be coached by professional English coaches will also help that nurturing process."

Lowney ECAC Player of the Week

Fitchburg State senior Steve Lowney of Wilmington had his trophy case expanded this past week by being named ECAC North Player of the Week and MASCAC Player of the Week.

The right wing started slowly this season, but exploded with five goals and five assists for 10 points in FSC's 3-0 week. Against Framingham State he led the way to a 7-1 victory with a goal and four assists. Then he capped a thrilling 5-4 win over Roger Williams with a hat trick, including the game winner in overtime. Against Southern Main he scored in regulation, then assisted on the game winner as the Falcons prevailed, 3-2.

On the season the co-captain now has six goals and six assists for 12 points. The Falcons enter their semester break with an impressive 6-1-1 record, 5-0-1 in ECAC North play. Their only loss was in the opener against UMass-Amherst.

AIDS Awareness Week an ideal time to learn

Although Aids is a rapidly spreading and correctly feared fatal disease, many people are still unclear about what it is and how to prevent it. Aids Awareness Week may have prompted people to get the information they need to increase their knowledge and decrease their risk. In fact, in the absence of a vaccine or cure, information is one of the best weapons currently available in the fight against Aids.

Aids has become the number one killer of men between the ages of 21 and 40. Although some individuals would like to believe that the illness strikes only those in the homosexual or IV drug using community, the statistics paint a much different picture. "In most of the world, Aids is a heterosexual disease," says Michael Britt, M.D., an infectious disease specialist at Winchester Hospital and medical director of the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington. "Although the disease began in the United States, homosexual community, and has hit the IV drug using community hard, we are now seeing its continuing and growing emergence among heterosexuals."

According to Dr. Britt, people need to understand that Aids is a disease. "Aids is communicated by intimate sexual contact or blood exposure only," he explains. "It is not communicated by casual modes, such as touching the same surfaces as someone with the disease or casual contact with someone who has Aids. "Because the virus is not hardy, it cannot survive for long outside the body. "As long as you do not inject blood from an infected person with whom you are sharing a needle, and you avoid intimate sexual contact and high risk sexual behavior, the disease cannot spread to you," he says. He also points out that improvements in screening and testing donated blood now ensures that the United States blood supply is extremely safe.

Another area of confusion is the difference between being HIV positive and having the chemical disease of Aids. Being HIV positive means you have the virus in your body, and that someday you will develop Aids. Even though people can infect others when they are HIV positive, most people who are HIV positive do not know it because they can be symptom-free on the average of seven to eight years. Some remain symptom free for up to 20 years.

Because Aids is a venereal disease, and because HIV positive individuals may be unaware they have it, they may transmit it. They must understand the risk of casual sexual behavior and they must change their current behavior. And since epidemics are easiest to control when the numbers are still small, now is the time for heterosexuals to make the adjustments in their sexual behavior to reduce their risk. The suggestions are straightforward and sensible.

One way to prevent getting Aids is to abstain from sexual contact. However, this is not the only way. "Recognizing this is not possible for everyone, it's vital to limit the number of sexual partners," cautions Dr. Britt, noting that people should be especially wary of those who have had multiple partners "and unprotected sex - that is, without using a condom - is to be avoided at all costs. Condoms must be the dress of the '90s for those who are sexually active or not in monogamous, long standing relationships.

During Aids Awareness Week, the Family Medical Center provided information about the disease, targeted to a variety of audiences, from children to healthcare workers. Winchester Hospital sponsored people living with Aids to speak with the students in Wilmington High School. In late January, the Family Medical Center will sponsor a presentation to parents of elementary school age children on talking to children about HIV/AIDS.

Speech therapy helps stroke patients

One of the most common and frustrating effects of a stroke is impairment of a person's ability to communicate. Speech therapy however, can help the stroke patient make great strides in regaining this ability, often within weeks or months.

Rosemary Lewis, a speech pathologist who works at both

Winchester Hospital and the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington, explains the ways in which a stroke can affect a person's ability to communicate. "A stroke occurs when the blood supply to the brain is interrupted, resulting in damage to brain tissue," says Lewis. "If you think of the brain as a great circuit board, a stroke results in a lot of frayed connections between different areas of the brain. Our speech and language centers are located in the left cerebral hemisphere, so a stroke occurring in the left side of the brain can impair our ability to express ourselves or to understand what people say to us. This is known as aphasia."

A stroke occurring in the right side of the brain, on the other hand, affects language in a different way.

When the right side of the brain is involved, there are cognitive-linguistic deficits. A person may have problems with memory, attention and concentration. "They may be unable to stay on a specific topic of conversation, going off on tangents," says Lewis. "They may also show poor reasoning and judgment, which can jeopardize their safety. And there is often a lack of consistency between their thoughts and actions - they say they know they shouldn't do something, for example, they proceed to do it anyway."

Lewis also notes that people with strokes may have speech problems and swallowing difficulties related to muscle weakness. When speaking, the tongue, lips and jaw must be able to move rapidly, precisely and in coordination to achieve clear speech production. When sensation and muscle function is impaired, the automatic process of swallowing may be disrupted and the patient becomes at risk for aspiration - food entering the lungs. The goal of speech therapy is to help the patient regain muscle function and to retrain the patient in the skills which the stroke has impaired.

Lewis explains, "If aphasia is the problem, we work on reconnecting the broken links - gaining control of the articulators, increasing understanding of verbal information, word retrieval, putting thoughts into words of finding alternative means of communication. It takes a lot of practice to establish new pathways between different areas of the brain. The amount of recovery depends on the severity of the stroke, general medical status and the timeliness of implementing a therapy program.

"We generally see great improvement within the first few months after a stroke when spontaneous recovery is also occurring. However, gains can be made even as long as years after a stroke."

If the right side of the brain is affected, Lewis works with the patient to increase his or her attention span, and improve the ability to focus and concentrate.

"We 'exercise the brain,' practicing higher level thinking skills and work on solving everyday problems. For example, we practice using the phone book or describing the steps of grocery shopping." Depending on the patient's level of recovery, Lewis will go out into the community with the patient.

"As a speech therapist, I will often work in conjunction with the occupational therapist. Together we'll take the patient shopping, for example, and add different tasks for the patient to complete."

Gulf vets to get cash bonus

Rep. James Miceli reports the Mass. House has adopted legislation to provide cash bonus payments to local veterans who saw action in the Gulf War. The bonuses continue a traditional offering to military personnel who have served in combat roles during wartime.

"Given the great sacrifice more than 4,000 brave Bay Staters made when called upon by their country, these bonuses represent a small but heartfelt token of appreciation for a job well done. I feel that such a tribute is well deserved," said Miceli.

Personnel who served at last 30 days in the Persian Gulf are eligible, upon retirement from the service, for $500. Reservists and members of the National and Air National Guard who were called to service but did not serve at last 30 days are eligible for $300 upon their retirement. While Miceli took similar action last May to insure servicemen and women would receive bonuses, his effort last week was necessary to provide another 500 qualifying veterans their just recognition.

Last whist game

The last whist game of 1993 will be held in the function room of the Senior Center Monday, Dec. 27 beginning at 1 p.m. All seniors who enjoy the game are invited.

Nutrition class

Tuesday, Dec. 28, the last nutrition class of 1993 will be held in the craft room starting at 9:30 a.m. The nutrition class is a relatively new class this year. This class is a place to discover how to eat well. This is a support group. All seniors in the group help each other overcome the habit of eating foods that are harmful to older people. It also helps in the preparation of foods.

The group meets every second and fourth Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. It could be educational, pleasant and some even meet new friends and live a happier, healthier life in 1994.

Upholstery class

The upholstery class is held every Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon in the craft room. Ray Allen, volunteer instructor will teach any senior who wants to learn how to reupholster a piece of furniture. He is in the process now of taking apart one of the large chairs at the center. Those interested are invited to drop by and take notes as Ray goes from step to step, but please don't take a chair to the center. There are plenty there that need Ray's expertise.

All classes are free to Wilmington residents 60 years of age and older.

Lunch notes

Schools will be closed for the Christmas vacation starting December 23 until after New Year's. Minuteman Home Care will deliver meals for shutins to the Center December 27, 28, 29, 30.

•Drunk driving ...

Attorney and School Committeeman Bob Peterson plays the arrested man's lawyer, offering sound advice: "you and your friends should not take this lightly. As you will see the court does not."

Lieutenant Robert Spencer of the Wilmington Police also played a large role, acting essentially as screenwriter.

"Bob Spencer really wrote out the scenario for us," Curtin said.

The program, which will air on Channel 52 throughout the holiday season, breaks down the costs of a drunk-driving arrest, figuring in such things as license reinstatement, bail, car towing, lawyer's fees, court fees and a mandatory $527 alcohol awareness program to reach the minimum $2,000 price tag for one night's "fun."

While the show's message applies to anyone who might drink and drive, it is geared towards a younger audience.

Spencer compares the $527 for the awareness program to the cost of spring break vacation in Cancun, for example.

"It's not whether you're over or under 21, but 'why spend the money?' Curtin asks rhetorically.

The Night Before Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that Saint Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugarplums danced in their heads;
And mama in her kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap —
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon on the crest of the new-fallen snow
Gave a lustre of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eye should appear,
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be Saint Nick!
More rapid than eagles his courses they came,
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name:
'Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on Cupid! or, Donner and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall!
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the courses they flew,
With a sleigh full of toys — and Saint Nicholas, too.

And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney Saint Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.

His eyes, how they twinkled! his dimples, how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook, when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump — a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang in his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight:
'Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night!'

An annual thing

The Bell Ringers

By KEN MAGUIRE

If William Booth were alive today, he would be proud of his Salvation Army workers and volunteers, many of whom have braved snow, sleet, and rain as Kettle Bell Ringers in front of supermarkets across the state and here in the Middlesex East region.

During a wet snowfall Sunday, one Kettle Bell Ringer explained why she braves the elements.

"Part of me would rather be home in bed or sitting by a fire place, but I know there are lots of people out there that need help," said 15-year-old Kris Johnson, who was working the entrance to Caldor in Stoneham's Redstone Shopping Center.

"My parents brought me up in the Salvation Army," she continued. "I just want to do my part to help, that's all."

William Booth would shake her hand had he been there. He was the Englishman who founded The Salvation Army in London's East Side back in 1865. It began as a mission to assist the needy, but turned into a war, hence the "Army" title and quasi-military structure of the worldwide organization.

Here in the Middlesex East area, and in most of eastern Massachusetts, the Kettle Bell ringers are clanging their hearts out, but the results have been a bit disappointing.

"We're down about two percent up to now," Lt. Donald Silva said this week. "Unfortunately it looks like it's still on the declining status. We've been surprised because we did really well last year."

Lt. Silva, who operates the Malden post of The Salvation Army, said there has been no difference this year in the number of Kettles, the hours they have been out, or in the number of volunteers. He said there is no way to pinpoint why the numbers are down. What makes the decrease even more alarming is an improved economy this year.

Unlike other "charity" organizations which fail to push a large percentage of their donations ahead to the needy, The Salvation Army is currently sending 70 cents on every dollar donated toward purchasing Christmas dinners and gifts, Lt. Silva explained. Last year it was 75 cents on every dollar, but the two percent drop at the Kettles has taken its toll.

Kettle Bell ringers are paid $5 per hour for their efforts, which is not an extravagant figure by a long shot although it is still a detractor for the overall take. And especially so this year because of a drop in the volunteer ranks.

"Last year we had volunteers for bell ringers, but this year we haven't had any at all," Lt. Silva said. "That's contributed to the overall drop."

The Malden base, which covers Malden, Medford, and Everett, was responsible for 250 Thanksgiving dinners, including veggies and desserts. For Christmas, Lt. Silva hopes to supply full holiday meals to 300 families. He added that toys will accompany the meals.

The "toy shop" will be open for families to browse. "We don't just give away toys," Lt. Silva explained, "we let parents pick them out of the toy shop. I think it's a nice touch."

In towns where there is no base office, such as the one in Malden, community volunteers operate the "service areas." The city of Woburn, and towns such as Stoneham, Reading, and others are considered service areas. But while the title is different, it's still the same spirit that drives volunteers and workers. After all, who else would CLOTHING FOR THE NEEDY has been donated to The Salvation Army this holiday season, but financial donations have dipped two percent from last year. really want to spend a freezing cold Sunday afternoon clanging a bell as strangers pass.

Although Kettle donations are on the down side, attitudes are not. One of Lt. Silva's mainstays on the kettle circuit receives some special treatment, especially in the nasty weather.

"The employees of Ames in Medford are really nice to her," he said. "They bring her coffee and hot chocolate. They're nice people because it does get extremely cold out there."

The Kettle season, a tradition since 1897, is nearing its conclusion for this year. Ringers will stay on duty this week, including a full day Thursday and a half-day on Friday, Christmas Eve.

The Salvation Army has a lengthy mission statement, which is memorized and practiced by each member, which Lt. Silva summed up as "Heart To God and Hand To Man."

"The reason we do what we do is for the love of Jesus," he explained. "If we help each other as brothers and sisters

Christmas

There is no room, I'm sorry sir
But you may use that stable there,
The straw and hay and manger sir,
are warmer than this midnight air.

Joseph thanked him then slowly turned and with Mary walked in the barn's dim light
As cows and lambs all soon learned
A Savior would be born that night.

This happened oh, so long ago
As Wisemen traveled night and day
To bring their gifts so all would know
To come and kneel, adore and pray.

What will your Christmas answer be?
"I have no room, as you can see",
Or will you say, on bended knee
"Oh Infant Jesus, Abide In Me."

ANTHONY MANCONI

I'm sure some of you remember a sentimental popular song, especially during this time of the year. The first line of this beautiful song that was on almost every GI's lips during World War II was "I'll be home for Christmas, if only in my dreams."

Something inside all of us beckons us home for Christmas. We remember that day as being with our families and friends. Many of us couldn't be home in the war years and many today must remain at their duty posts or stations throughout the world. But, they, along with those at home can be together in prayer, in a church, temple or assembly.

Since time immemorial, seafaring men have looked up to the stars for guidance. They relied on the North Star for direction and thereby sailed a true course... In 1943, a troop transport loaded down with men and equipment left San Francisco Harbor, sailed under the Golden Gate Bridge and, under cover of darkness, headed

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

Melrose treks north

Melrose treks north

More than 300 Melrose citizens journeyed north recently in a Christmas trek inspired by the Melrose and Reading Chambers of Commerce.

Thanks to storytellers on board each of the regular - and four extra - Amtrak rail cars, the venture brought to life Chris Van Allsburg's popular children's book "The Polar Express."

Upon arrival in Reading, the trainload of city folk followed a route through the village which included a walk to Reading Common for a look at its 10,000-bulb Christmas light display, a taste of candy canes, a carol of music, and a festival of window and other shopping.

The adventure capped a three-day holiday celebration in Melrose featuring street entertainment, special food booths, concerts, a candlelight stroll down Main St., a bell choir, and the community Christmas tree lighting.

Speaking of soon-to-be required December delights, at least two of the media members invited to judge Newburyport's shop window decorations and displays were so captivated by their magic that they now recommend adding that village, even farther north, to a growing list of must-do seasonal stopping, shopping and new holiday traditions.

Reserve those round-trip tickets now: with the possibility of the Polar Express - otherwise known as the Melrose-Reading star trek series - becoming an annual event, a sleigh ride - the North Pole Nocturnal? - to Newburyport can't be far behind.

Christmas? Too commercial? No way!

By the way, have you seen those Burlington lights?

Planning a holiday diet for two

During the holiday season, The Malden Hospital offers this advice to pregnant women - the food you eat matters more than ever when pregnant because a mother is nourishing two lives.

What to consume is important because many toxic substances can pass through the placenta to an unborn child. Tobacco, alcohol and many food additives can exert powerful effects on a sensitive developing fetus.

A balanced diet is recommended, rich in folic acid (from leafy green vegetables), calcium (from dairy products), iron (from legumes, lean meat, dried fruits, prune juice or blackstrap molasses), and plenty of fluids.

Diet matters, too, because food choices during pregnancy can help manage stomach upsets. By eating a series of smaller meals more often than usual, women can keep the stomach from becoming empty and thus cut down on acids that cause nausea. Protein snacks late at night also protect against morning sickness.

Holiday skating in Wilmington

Public skating at Ristuccia Exposition Center, 190 Main St., Wilmington is held every Sunday from 2:15 to 3:45 p.m. and Holiday skating, December 27th through 31st, 1 to 2:30 p.m.

The fee is $3 per person. Children under 12 must wear protective headgear.

"M.E.'s for You"

community service, "Grandpa Joe" Santoro of Malden has won Channel 56's Independent Spirit Award.

Nominated by family and friends because of his tireless energy and generosity, Santoro - a double amputee - belongs to Project Triangle, Trafton Park Associates, the Italian-American War Veterans, and the Stage One Theater Company.

He was recently involved in a children's production of "Peter Pan," the money from which will go to TriCap, an organization which supports such projects as Head Start, fuel assistance and housing for the homeless.

Those who know him best say he has confronted many problems but has never lacked courage, energy, determination or indomitable spirit.

Rabbitt goes to high school

Woburn's newly elected Mayor John Rabbitt has announced that Woburn's traditional inaugural ceremonies will take place on January 3rd at Woburn High rather than in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, as in his past five inaugurations.

The high school auditorium seats about 1,000 and there is ample parking on the school property.

Oliver C. Galante and William F. Sullivan are in charge of the inauguration program, the 75th of its kind; and although opinions range in Woburn on whether Rabbitt is the city's 32nd or 33rd mayor, the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle" states that some people are listed twice on the mayor's list and in fact, he is the 31st mayor.

The only other Woburn mayor to serve out six consecutive terms, a total of 12 consecutive years, is Mayor William E. Kane.

Say that again, please

A recent report in a local newspaper reads as follows: "A male subject requested a police officer at 8:33 p.m. last night to remove toy handcuffs from his wrists that had no keys."

Apparently, the cuffs had none either.

then the world would be a better place to live in."

Lt. Silva, who grew up in The Salvation Army and has been a lieutenant for nearly two years, said most people only see The Salvation Army as a charity organization, instead of the church it really is.

"A lot of people don't realize that The Salvation Army is a church. It's of Protestant denomination. I'm an ordained minister and hold church services every Sunday," Lt. Silva said.

Another Salvation Army regional official, Capt. Mary Ellen MacKay, said church founder William Booth wanted to set The Salvation Army apart from other churches over a century ago.

"He wanted it to be different," she explained. "He wanted it to stand out from the others. He felt we were fighting a war against sin. We're different from the others in many ways. For instance, our members are soldiers."

An obvious difference between The Salvation Army and other churches is in uniform. Army officials, aptly named in order of rank - lieutenant, captain, major, and Lt. colonel - go to work in uniform. Why? As explained by Lt. Silva, in war terms, "It's just a constant reminder of the constant battle we face everyday."

The news is not all bad for The Salvation Army ranks. Clothing donations are up, and food shelves are hanging in there thanks to recent drives in several communities. Toys were purchased before the holiday season, so they look to be in good shape as well.

But as for the financial donations, Capt. MacKay asks that everyone open their hearts, especially at such a special time of year.

"Do what you can because you don't know if you're going to be on the receiving end sometime," she said. "I realize that it's tight for people. But you'll feel better knowing you've helped others."

"Rumplestiltskin" at Boston Library

Rubber Duck Productions will return to the Boston Public Library for two live performances of "Rumplestiltskin" at 11 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. in the Rabb Lecture Hall of the Boston Central Library in Copley Square on Tuesday, December 28.

The classic Brothers Grimm tale is adapted and directed by Chris DeStefano and is filled with contemporary humor that is sure to delight young audiences.

Children 5 years of age and their families are cordially invited to attend this free performing arts program. Advance registration is not required, however, seating is limited and groups cannot be accommodated. Infrared assistive listening devices are available for hard-of-hearing children. For more information please call the Children's Room at (617) 536-5400, Ext. 328.

for the open sea. The ship was headed for the South Pacific war area.

Many troops on the ship wondered how in the world the captain could find his direction sailing without a Naval Escort. "There is no problem," the captain explained, "I get guidance from the stars."

The Three Wise Men in St. Matthew's Gospel also followed a star. It led them to a stable in Bethlehem, where the Child Jesus was born. The troopship captain, the Wise Men and we can depend on a star so that one day we will sail a true course into a harbor of everlasting peace. I'm sure we all have a special prayer and "thank you" for the many men and women who can't be home for Christmas.

Some of them are in the military all over the world. There are many in emergency standby in hospitals. Also, police and firefighters are on duty as are men and women in public utility power stations. They are all doing their jobs so that we may enjoy the holidays. God Bless You and a Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays to All.

Darlene Donovan of Saugus is heading for Hollywood as a Marilyn Monroe double. It's too bad I don't look like Joe DiMaggio, I look more like Yogi Berra... Yogi was asked, "How are things at that diner in Brooklyn where we used to hang out?" "Nobody goes there any more," Yogi replied, "The place is too crowded!"

Mike Coughlin told his mother that he wanted to be a priest. The next day when his mother told him to take the rubbish out he said, "Aw, Ma, I'm tired." "Well, Michael," she said, "you'll never be a priest if you're always tired. They have a very hard job to do." "I know that,"

WINTER FENCING PROGRAMS OFFERED

The Academy of Fencing, 125 Walnut St., Watertown will hold a fencing demonstration on Friday, January 7th at 8 p.m. Members of the Boston Fencing Club will fence demonstration bouts in foil, epee and sabre, the three weapons used in the modern Olympic sport. The demonstration is free and open to the public.

Fencing classes for adults and children start Saturday, January 8th and run for eight weeks. Fencing is a safe, exciting sport which can be learned and enjoyed at any age.

The Academy of Fencing, the Boston area's only fencing school, has provided fencing instruction for nearly 20 years. The Academy is part of the Boston Fencing Club, a non-profit organization. For more information about these and other programs, please contact Syd Fadner at the Academy of Fencing, (617) 926-3450.

NEW HIGH INTENSITY POLISH LANGUAGE COURSE

Christina Filarowski, a Polish language educator from Wakefield, will be conducting a new high intensity Polish language course for interested area residents.

"Practical Polish" reduces from years to months the time needed to learn practical Polish language skills by providing high intensity training in essential grammatical structure as well as a working command of modern usage.

"This program is designed for the motivated, first time Polish student," Miss Filarowski said.

The "Practical Polish" course will begin on January 4th and will be held every Tuesday in Billerica for 12 weeks. The program will be limited to 10 area students.

For more information, please phone Michael de Bethencourt at (508) 667-5591.

HOLIDAY ART AND ARCHITECTURE TOURS

The Boston Public Library will offer a number of special holiday Art & Architecture Tours of its two historic buildings in Copley Square during the week of December 27, between Christmas and New Year.

For generations, visitors from near and far have come to admire the elegance of the architecture and the beauty of the decoration of this National Historic Landmark: the murals, the sculptures, and the cloistered courtyard, a quiet oasis in the middle of a bustling city.

Volunteer docents will describe the magnificence of this world-class treasure house of art and architecture during two special holiday tour programs that will be offered by appointment only from Monday, December 27 through Thursday, December 30.

A specially designed tour for grandparents and their progenies (ages 6-12) will be offered daily from Monday December 27, through Thursday, December 30, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Advance registration is required and space is limited.

And on Friday, December 31, as Boston gears up to celebrate First Night, the general public is invited to tour the Library between the hours of 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. Advance registration is also required for the Friday tours and space is limited.

CHRISTMAS DINNER FREE OF CHARGE

Christmas Dinner with Friends will be held Saturday, December 25, from noon to 3 p.m. at the Northshore Unitarian Universalist Church, 323 Locust St., (Rte. 35), Danvers.

Open, at no charge, this is a Christmas Dinner with all the fixings to anyone in the area who would like to join with friends both old and new to celebrate the season. Entertainment will be provided.

Call Pam at the Church (508) 774-7582 during the day; or Tom during the evening at (508) 468-7453 for information or transportation.

SUPPORT FOR EX-SMOKERS AT QUITTERS IN MOTION

Even with a lot of encouragement from family and friends, sometimes it's difficult to break the cycle of smoking addiction. "Quitters in Motion," offered by Winchester Hospital, is an ongoing support group for those who have quit or are trying to quit smoking.

For many, smoking is a way to ease stress, anxiety and frustration or limit a craving for food. Quitters in Motion addresses these emotions and helps participants find ways to replace smoking with more positive behaviors.

Quitters in Motion may be used in conjunction with the nicotine patch as a patch advantage program. The group will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday evenings at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center, and costs $7 at the door. For more information call (617) 756-2220.

NEW LOCAL PROSTATE CANCER SUPPORT GROUP

Winchester Hospital now offers a support group for men who have prostate cancer which has been formed to provide information and support to those who are dealing with this disease. This group is for those who have received treatment and for those who have to make decisions as to a course of treatment.

The group provides information on the latest treatment methods and provides a forum to discuss common problems on a personal basis with those who have the disease.

The meeting hosts a professional speaker on the subject followed by discussion and small support groups to share information. Recent speakers have provided valuable information on courses of treatment and post-treatment problems.

Meetings are held on the first Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at The Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center, 23 Warren Ave., Woburn. There is no charge. Wives are invited to attend. For more information call Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220 or Dan Hritzay at (617) 729-0858.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, January 5. Dr. Jerry Rittenhouse will speak on "Incontinence after Surgery."

CLASSICAL SINGERS HOLD TRYOUTS

The New England Classical Singers with Music Director David Tierney will hold mid-year auditions on Wednesday, January 5, and Wednesday,

Still time to help Santa and the needy

The M.E. Santa is down quite a bit from last year. But, it is just part of a trend that is being experienced by the Salvation Army throughout this area.

Salvation Army officials say holiday season collections by bell-ringing kettle holders are down.

"I think there's so many people that have nothing left," said Steve Capoccia, a spokesman for the Salvation Army in Massachusetts. "You get like one out of 30 people, whereas normally it would be far more than that."

"It's harder to receive donations it seems this year. People haven't caught on that Christmas spirit," Capoccia said.

So far, kettle donations in the state total $1 million. Last year by this time, $2 million was collected.

The M.E. Santa (an extension of the kettle program) shows a similar shortfall.

Christmas donations of food, clothing and toys are down by 21 percent for 1993 as compared to 1992.

Donations have fallen nationwide, officials said. In 1992 the Salvation Army collected $171 million in Christmas donations, said Leon Ferraz of the agency's headquarters in Alexandria, Va. This year that number is expected to drop by 12 percent to around $150 million.

Capoccia said donations are appreciated.

"We're really grateful that people do contribute to the Salvation Army bell ringers and all they receive is a God bless you and merry Christmas that the bell ringers remark to them."

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

"Reform schools everywhere"

School councils take a lesson

If the teacher says that the best way to learn is by making mistakes, better hope the teacher isn't teaching brain surgeons.

That was one of the points made recently by Northeastern University's School Psychology Program Director of Training Louis Kruger to more than 75 members of Winchester's seven school councils.

The 1993 education reform act made the formation of such councils mandatory, and local school systems and their new councils are in various stages of "what do we do?" and "what do we do first?" A glance at various town government calendars in the Middlesex East area shows councils meeting in various schools at times which range from 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., and not necessarily at the same time each time, depending on the makeup of each group.

Kruger, in Winchester, told that collective group that it's okay to make mistakes in defining its roles and responsibilities: as long as members make mistakes together and learn from them, they can't help but develop a "shared vision," according to Kruger in the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

Kruger considers the most important lesson he gives to be the knowledge that council members need to collaborate because they are part of a team, including teachers, parents, students, and other community members, with the principal at the head.

The main function of each council, as defined by the state, is to help the principal in decision-making and implementation, in a manner consistent with district-wide policies and state standards. Councils are charged with adopting educational goals, identifying educational needs, reviewing the school budget, and forming a school improvement plan which encompasses ideas about discipline, safety, class size, and parental involvement.

Effective group problem-solving, said Kruger, is a council priority.

Also concerned about school councils, Malden educators used the city's recent Second Annual Conference on the Malden Public Schools to focus on the Education Reform Act.

Malden School Committee member Christopher Fallon and Chamber of Commerce president co-chaired the conference to which they invited all city residents, business owners, educators, and government leaders.

State Representative Mark Roosevelt, Education Reform school safety and discipline, enhancing parent involvement in the life of the school, the school as an environment of respect, extra-curricular activities, staff and course offerings, and academic assessment and testing, both standard and alternative.

And the Burlington School Committee has voted to engage the services of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees to assist the local committee in bringing its policy manual into compliance with the requirements of the Education Reform Act.

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Woodchips From S-4

Mike replied, "that's why I'm resting now."

My sister, Maureen, always wanted to be a "practical nurse." "What kind of nurse is that?" I asked. "It's a nurse who marries a rich doctor." "I asked my Aunt Nora, "How many cups of tea do you have a day?" "I don't think it's any of your business, 'four eyes,' but if you must know, I have seven cups of tea a day." "Oh!" I exclaimed, "that's Salada tea!"

Paul Simon of Stoneham asked me, "Chipper, how's your wife, Kathy, these days?" "She's driving me to drink," I said. "Well," Paul replied, "consider yourself lucky. I have to walk."

A cold is sometimes negative and sometimes affirmative. It's when either the 'nose' or the 'eyes' have a cold. Come to think of it, Folks, have you ever wondered where a nudist with a head cold keeps his handkerchief?

This is about the time of year when my Uncle John Shea of North Reading would come home from church and shout, "Father Dan must love flowers.

Everytime I go to church the altar is either full of poinsettias or lilies!"

Richie Hamel of Winchester was watching the pretty girls walk by, along came a beauty, Richie said, "Hi Cutie!" and that's how he got his black eye!... Woodchips' wish and fervent prayer is a "Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays to all."

Kids Helping Kids: The Christmas Seals "Kids Drawing Contest"

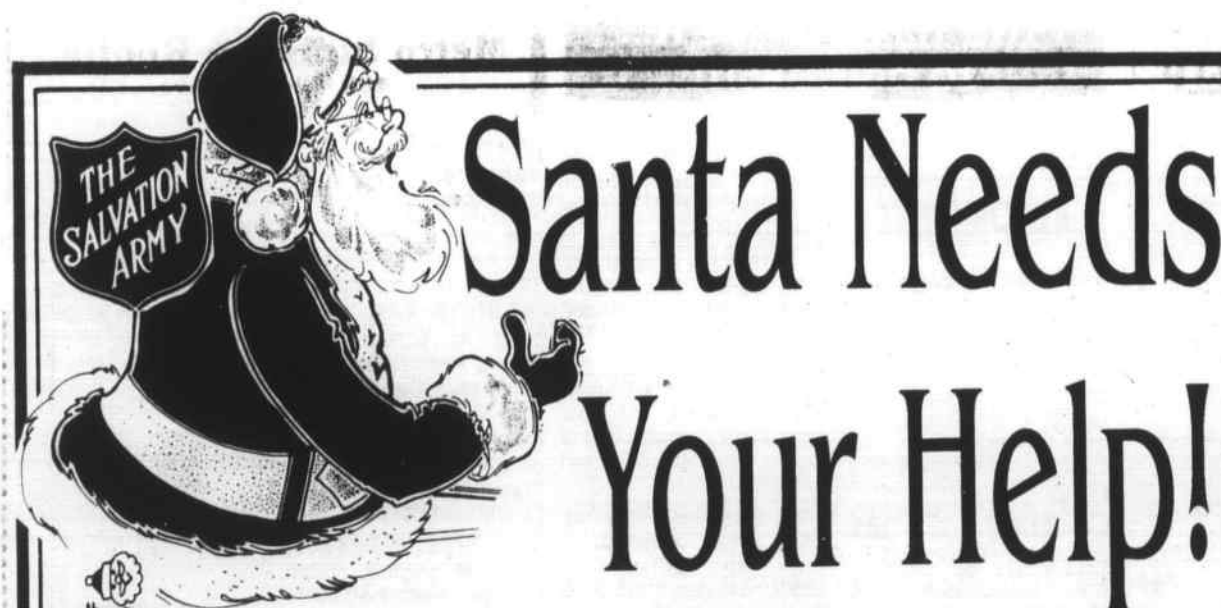

(NAPS)—Your child's holiday drawing could be the 1995 Christmas Seal! Children across America are invited to enter the Christmas Seals "Kids Drawing Contest," sponsored by the Triaminic Parents Club. For each drawing entered, Triaminic will donate one dollar to the American Lung Association's programs for children.

Christmas Seals were first designed by children in 1975. But actual drawings by kids have not been used since 1981. Since the first Seal was designed in 1907, the ALA has raised millions of dollars through the sale of Christmas Seals to fight against lung disease, the third leading cause of death in the U.S.

The contest theme is Things That Make You Feel Good at the Holidays. Winning designs will be chosen from each of the 50 states, plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Each of the 52 finalists will win an electronic V-Tech Video Painter, and their drawing will be entered in the national phase of judging. The national winner will receive a personal computer with a series of artwork software, and his or her design will become an official American Lung Association Christmas Seal. Each year Christmas Seals reach more than 30 million homes.

The Christmas Seals "Kids Drawing Contest," for kids ages six to 15, kicks off December 1, 1993 with an entry deadline of March 4, 1994. To obtain an entry form or more information call 1-800-LUNG USA.

A list of contributors will be published in Middlesex East throughout December.

MOVIES

"The Pelican Brief", Short Takes

by Rochelle Flynn

"The Pelican Brief" Starring Julia Roberts, Denzel Washington. Directed and written by Alan J. Pakula. Produced by Pakula and Pieter Jan Brugge. Based on the book by John Grisham. Rated PG-13.

Alfred Hitchcock called it a "McGuffin." It was his name for the plot catalyst, that thing that got the action going and then became unimportant. And once it is moving along, the action that set it all in motion became less important than the motion itself.

Well, the McGuffin in this churning thriller is the death of two Supreme Court Justices on the same evening. One, an elderly man played by the acerbic Hume Cronyn, appears to be a pointless murder, as he was ancient and failing. The second Justice (Ralph Cosham) seemed to have nothing in common with his dead benchmate. No link can be found between the two assassinations except for their timing. There is little hope of solving these crimes.

But Julia Roberts' Darby Shaw has a clue. She's a 24-year-old law student involved with her sexy, alcoholic professor (Sam Shepard). Darby is spurred into investigating the killings by Shepard's grief. He once clerked for Cronyn and had the utmost respect for the old man. She stumbles onto the connection, the one little link between these two men.

When Shepard passes her brief, the Pelican Brief, onto a buddy at the F.B.I., Darby finds herself immersed in a terrifying game of cat and mouse. She has no idea who the cat is, only that she is the mouse and no one is to be trusted.

If you spend too much time trying to follow all the fast moving plot threads, you'll miss the fun. Some of the tangents aren't tied up until the end, and then with a quick, almost dismissible summary. Doesn't matter, the fun is in the chase.

Unlike most protagonists, Roberts isn't a cool customer. As everyone who knows about her brief is blown up or shot at, she is justifiably terrified. It's all over her face and expressed in her body language. Roberts is brilliant at combining such numbing terror with the strength, intelligence and grief that make her character quite remarkable. Without Roberts' magnetic performance, the movie simply wouldn't have worked.

Of course, she is helped by the stalwart Denzel Washington as Gray Grantham, an investigative reporter who has to earn her trust. Scurrying around Washington trying to piece together the facts that will substantiate Darby's brief, the journalist suddenly finds himself making news, not just witnessing it. Though Washington is a seemingly unruffled helpmate, the mounting terror of what he is uncovering begins to creep into his eyes. He may be loving all the action, but Washington is too good an actor to make this guy a one-dimensional news hound.

In fact, the plot is such a stretch that this flick would have fizzled without its amazing cast and Alan J. Pakula's fast and tight direction. The supporting players provide intense fodder for the charismatic Roberts and Washington. John Heard is a well meaning, but rather bumbling FBI lawyer, Robert Culp the grinning, clueless president, and Tony Goldwyn as his shark-like adviser. Pakula's adaptation of novelist John Grisham's watery conspiracy may be easy to dismiss, but this group of actors isn't.

Short Takes

A Perfect World is a moody character study disguised as a manhunt for an escaped convict in 1963. Unfolding across a dry Texas backdrop, criminal Kevin Costner forges a relationship with his young abductee, T.J. Lowther, a fatherless boy who bonds with his charming kidnapper. Clint Eastwood and anachronistic feminist Laura Dern track their man as director Eastwood creates another anti-violence film, only this one amazingly is subtle and profound. Though overly long, it is an astute and thought-provoking drama. Rated PG-13. ****

Mrs. Doubtfire is an extremely enjoyable, frothy little comedy that owes its success to Robin Williams' inimitable performance. In order to see his children on a daily basis, divorced dad Williams disguises himself as the perfect British nanny. Though the slapstick element is over the top, Williams' physical comedy and mimicry is both masterful and uproariously funny. It also makes a strong statement about the real meaning of family values. Rated PG-13. ***
